Editorial

Dear friends,
For Indians, the month of August marks the spirit of Independence. While the country celebrated 68th Independence Day, SNDTWU had a spectacular programme at its Churchgate campus where tricolour was hoisted by the chief guest, Dr. Subhash Chandra, in the presence of the Vice Chancellor, Prof. Vasudha Kamat and the NCC cadets took pledge of being faithful to the country. The spirited patriotic songs sung by the students rose patriotic fervour amongst the staff and students. The chief guest's speech was followed by a lively question - answer session in the packed Patkar Hall.

Much before the country became independent, Bharatratna Maharshi Karve, made focussed efforts to liberate women by bringing them into the fold of education. This University was established a hundred years ago when the higher education was completely dominated by the British rulers making it inaccessible to a large section of women of this country. Maharshi started schools for women and then went on to establish the Indian Women's University where women could have access to higher education in their mother tongue. It was an Indian Women's University, started by an Indian for the women of his country where the content and medium of instruction were our own. Generations of women are indebted to Maharshi for bringing to them the right to higher education. The Indian Women's University was later renamed SNDT Women's University after Sir Vitthaladas Thackersy gave a sumptuous donation and willed that the university be renamed after his mother.

The month of August saw another major activity where we carried out the Digital India campaign which gave us a taste of freedom from the past and connected us to new technology, viz. mobile computing, cloud computing, internet of things, robotics, 3-D printing among others. While acquainting students with new knowledge and skills, attention was paid to developing an attitude of inclusive development where the students took a pledge to ensure digital literacy within one kilometre radius. It was heartening to see the students participating with a spirit of collaboration and healthy competition and cheered the prize winners.

This is an exciting year for SNDT Women's University as the centennial year celebrations are in full swing. I am confident that the faculty and students will participate wholeheartedly within and without the ambit of academic programmes and share it with the whole world through this e-Newsletter.

From the Vice Chancellor's Desk

I am happy that we are fulfilling the promise of publishing the e-newsletter on 15th of each month. There is so much happening especially as a part of Centennial Year programmes, that e-Newsletter could be published every week.

The first meeting of Centennial Year Advisory Committee constituted by the Vice Chancellor, which consisted of Senators Shri. Shekhar Bajaj and Mr. Alex Emmanuel was conducted on Aug 10 in which all the centennial year programmes were discussed. Some more were introduced, some got reformulated and some discarded from the suggestive list. Now the roadmap is clear for us to go ahead in a big way. You will find some of the programmes also conducted in August.

One important decision taken by the committee was to create a 10 Crore worth Endowment Fund by July 5, 2016. This implies that all of us need to work towards achieving the goal. The endowment fund will help hundreds of deserving girls aspiring for higher education, general or professional, and support them in fulfilling their dreams. Why don't you pen down the cheque towards this endowment fund? Start now!*

Digital India Campaign was conducted with much fervor by students and teachers. On Independence Day Hon'ble Prime Minister gave us a new thought "Start Up India, Stand Up India"! At SNDT we had initiated discussions with NASSCOM and other Industrialists on starting Incubation Centre so that the students can try out innovative ideas and transform them into reality. There are many academic programmes offered by SNDTWU where the students can aspire to have their own start up after getting Master's degree. In this Centennial Year we must see that this dream of establishing the Incubation centre comes true.

On the International collaboration front we are happy to collaborate with University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada in designing a new Master level "Global Educational Leadership programme". Prof. Michelle Stack, from School of Education, UBC is visiting us from Aug 30 to Sept 26. I welcome her to SNDTWU and look forward to valuable inputs for developing this programme.

On Aug 20, we had a special visitor, Dr. Heena Gavit, the youngest Member of Parliament. She is a medical doctor by profession, but social worker at heart! We discussed with her the possibility of meeting all women Members of Parliament in Delhi to share with them the exhilarating journey of the past hundred years of this unique institution, the First Women's University in South East Asia.

With best wishes!

Understanding H index - Prof. Shobha Udipi

The H-index was developed by Jorge E Hirsch, a physicist, to quantify the output of individual researchers and to overcome the limitations of using number of publications and/or number of citations for the same. It measures the number of highly impactful papers that a research scholar has published. The H-index is only one of several bibliometric measures that are used. "A scientist has index  $h$  if  $h$  of his/her  $N_p$  papers have at least  $h$  citations each, and the other ( $N_p - h$ ) papers have no more than  $h$  citations each." H-index, as defined by Hirsch, is the number of papers with their citation number. The h-index basically reflects the number of papers a researcher has published and the number of times these have been cited (i.e. reflects quality). However, it can be used to compare individuals who do research in the same field and who are at the same level. When Hirsch developed this index he suggested that for physics an  $h$  of 12 could be considered for tenure i.e. associate professor whereas for full professorship an  $h$  of 18 could be used. For membership in the US National Academy of Sciences an  $h$  of 45 may be considered. Hirsch later showed that the  $h$ -index is a better predictor of future scientific achievement than are other indicators. Hirsch calculated the  $h$ -index of Nobel prize winners and 84% of them had an  $h$ -index of at least 30. An  $h$ -index of 100 corresponds to about 10000 citations. It is possible that in Social Sciences  $h$ -indices may be lower than in others.

The merit of the  $h$ -index is that it relies on citations not the journals in which the papers have been published. If only citations were used there could be one or a few papers that are highly cited but it would give a skewed measure of the productivity of a researcher. It is not influenced by the total number of papers that are rarely cited and thus overcomes the disadvantage of using number of papers as a measure. It can be used not only to compare individuals, but can also be applied for comparison of departments, programmes or a group of research scholars or scientists.

Critics of the  $h$ -index feel that it has less predictive accuracy than the total number of citations for a scholar and that it can be manipulated with self-citations etc., hence alternatives have been proposed such as  $m$ -index. While it takes into account the number of citations, it does not consider whether the citation is negative, the number of authors or the position of the author.

Researchers can calculate the  $h$ -index using Web of Science, Scopus and Google Scholar. However, each of these may well give a different  $h$ -index for the same person, because the coverage is different. Reference: Hirsch, J. E. (2005). An index to quantify an individual's scientific research output. Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America, 102(46), 16569-16572. doi:10.1073/pnas.0507655102

Manual calculation of h-index

Listed below are articles A, B, C, D, E, F, G with their corresponding serial numbers and number of citations in descending order. The serial number is denoted as ' $h$ ' and the number of citations as ' $f$ '.

|---------|---------|------------------|
| 1       | A       | 35               |
| 2       | B       | 28               |
| 3       | C       | 21               |
| 4       | D       | 10               |
| 5       | E       | 4                |
| 6       | F       | 3                |
| 7       | G       | 2                |
| 8       | H       | 1                |
| 9       | I       | 0                |

When ' $h$ '  $\geq$  ' $f$ ' we get an  $h$ -index. In the example given above, we calculate the  $H$ -index as follows:

The first article has been cited at least 35 times so it gives us a value of 1

The second article has been cited at least 28 times so it gives us a value of 2

The third article has been cited at least 21 times so it gives us a value of 3

The fourth article has been cited at least 10 times so it gives us a value of 4

The fifth article has only 4 citations (which is less than its serial number) and the others have even less so we do not consider these

The h-index is therefore 4

Suppose the fourth paper had been cited only 3 times and the following papers or articles less number of times, the  $h$ -index would be 3.

Understanding Impact Factor

- Dr. Jyoti Bhabal

Librarians and information scientists have been evaluating journals for at least 75 years. A classic study of citation patterns was conducted by Gross and Gross in the 1920s. Computer technology made possible the preparation of statistical reports on journal output based on citation frequency, known as citation indexes. Thomson Reuters began to publish citation indexes and in the '60s they invented the journal "Impact Factor."

Impact Factor is a measure of the frequency with which the average article in a journal has been cited in a particular year. It is a citation measure produced by Thompson Scientific's ISI Web of Knowledge database. Impact factors are published annually in ISI's Journal Citation Reports Database and are available only for journals that are indexed in ISI databases.

How Impact Factors are Calculated

A journal's impact factor for 2012 would be calculated by taking the number of citations in 2012 from articles that were published in 2011 and 2010 and dividing that number by the total number of articles published in that same journal in 2011 and 2010. Please see the example below.

Example: The specific calculations for Nursing Research's 2011 impact factor are displayed below.

Articles published in 2010 that were cited in 2011: 63

Articles published in 2009 that were cited in 2011: 94

$63+94=157$

Total Number of articles published in 2010: 61

Total number of articles published in 2009: 51

$61+51=112$

$157 / 112 = 1.402$

The 2011 Impact Factor for the journal Nursing Research means that, on an average, articles published in this journal in 2011 and 2012 have been cited around 1.4 times.

Impact Factors are influenced by several factors. Journals having more research focus, inclusion of review articles, and sustained for a longer period have higher impact factor. The subject fields that change/grow rapidly such as science and technology have higher impact factor as their articles are cited more when compared to other fields. It is also possible that a journal may have high citations only for selective articles, giving a false impact factor. ISI's indexing policy also plays its role in calculation of impact factor of the journal.

Since its advent, impact factor has gained acceptance as a quantitative measure of a journal's quality. Impact factor is used by librarians in selecting journals for library collections, and, in some countries, it is used to evaluate individual scientists and institutions for the purposes of academic promotion and funding allocation.

Independence Day Celebration

Independence Day Celebration

On August 15, 2015 the Independence Day Celebrations at SNDTWU acquired a special touch in the august presence of Dr. Subash Chandra, Chairperson Essel Group, Chief Guest and Keynote Speaker of the day. The celebration commenced with Dr. Subhash Chandra unfurling the tricolor with the NCC Cadets marching and taking the Guard of Honour.

The flag hoisting ceremony was followed by a formal function during which the Music Department presented patriotic songs. The Pro Vice Chancellor, Prof. Vandana Chakrabarti gave a glimpse of the activities pertaining to the centennial year and introduced the e-Newsletter of the University. The Newsletter in its digital format was released by the Chief Guest.

Being a proponent of technology and digitization, SNDT WU is committed to digital literacy and digital empowerment of its present and future students. As a part of the Digital India Campaign several seminars, conferences, webinars and competitions were conducted by the University. The winners of the competitions were felicitated by the dignitaries.

In his address, Dr. Chandra stressed the importance of freedom and spoke about the divide between India and Bharat. He emphasised the need for youth participation in politics and implored the youth to contribute in the process of nation building. Dr. Chandra later interacted with the students and provided insightful answers to all their doubts and queries.

In her Presidential Address, the Vice Chancellor Prof. Vasudha Kamat, spoke about the Digital India Campaign and highlighted the fact that the University hosted the program for 45 days instead of the requisite one week. She applauded the efforts of the Digital India Campaign team and traced the journey of the campaign from the release of the Information Security Policy of the University by eminent scientist Dr. R. Mashelkar and the grand closing by noted industrialist Dr. Subash Chandra. Prof. Kamat congratulated the e-newsletter team for their efforts.

The program ended with the Registrar Dr. S.P. Badgujar proposing the vote of thanks wherein he hoped that the social outreach programmes of the ZEE group and the visionary efforts of this pioneering women's university would work towards a fruitful partnership.

1. Lecture on 'School Librarianship'

On August 11, 2015, a lecture on 'School Librarianship' by Ms. Hina Mehta was organized by the Subject Association of SHPT School of Library Science.

Ms. Hina Mehta, a Library Media Specialist in Teaneck Public Schools, USA shared her experiences with the first and second year students of the M.Lib.Sc. She introduced the students to the Online Library Media Centre and the various online services developed and offered by the library and Media Centre under her leadership. Students were given a glimpse of the website of the library and the various free sources/apps/games which are available online through the Online Library Media Center. Her talk focused on how electronic media was used by the library to engage active participation of students in quizzes, essays and video making competitions. She also mentioned how orientation programmes are organized by the library for teachers as well as for students and student assignments on the curriculum can be designed in consultation with teachers and executed online. This was followed by a lively interactive session in which students' curiosity about prospects in USA was clarified.

6. Panel Discussion on the Book 'I Am Malala'

On August 25, 2015, the Departments of Economics, Political Science, Social Work, and Sociology organized a panel discussion on the book 'I am Malala'.

The session began with the screening of Malala's Nobel acceptance speech. The words of courage and determination that were expressed by the 16 year old Malala in her speech were a source of inspiration for the students to emulate. Growing up in the Swat Valley with supportive parents who believed in education for their daughter and taught her the true meaning of Islam, Malala was emboldened to take on the Taliban terrorists who opposed education for women. Malala called herself the representative of all 66 million girls who are denied education because of political, social or religious reasons. Her dream was to build primary and secondary schools not only in the Swat Valley in Pakistan but also in other developing countries. She expressed the need to stop child marriage and child labour. With conviction in her voice, she vowed to put an end to empty classrooms and wasted childhoods.

The panelists, Dr. Sabiha More and Dr. Vibhuti Patel wove a connection between Malala's life and reality and that of the students present for the discussion. They focused on the fact that education and single minded determination can enable a woman to overcome all odds. Both the panelists believed that equality should begin for the girl child in the home, as it did for Malala, and that family support was essential if the girl child has to find her rightful place in society. Dr. More said that it is not culture or religion that impedes women's progress but that it is fundamentalist ideas that create the barriers.

The panelists' insightful remarks on Malala's life and speech triggered introspection and led to a lively discussion on many unexplored questions. The two hour session posed before the students crucial and pertinent questions that pushed them to reflect on their inherent strengths and the need to be confident and courageous in the face of adversity. They went back convinced that there is a Malala in each one and that education is the catalyst that will spur them to find independence and equality in society.

7. Interactive session on Social Science Research at the Department of Economics

On August 31, the Department of Economics organised a talk by Dr. Michelle Stack, Assistant Professor, Department of Educational Studies, University of British Columbia, Canada, on Social Science Research And Its Implications For Socio-Economic Change followed by an interactive session with the students of the department.

The focus of her talk was on Qualitative Research patterns and issues confronted by researchers. Dr. Michelle shared the research experiences of her team with school children that enabled them to influence policies and brought about improvement in quality of schools and child care schemes. They trained researchers to interact with indigenous children and understand their real life situation. She also discussed how her research involvement with Adivasi children had helped in implementation of the new policies. Ethical issues involved in research and the role played by media in dissemination of information regarding the plight of Adivasi children were also discussed.

Professor Vibhuti Patel, HOD Economics, SNDT, shared her experiences and participatory action with working women, domestic workers and women vendors.

Multiculturalism and 'Cultural Genocide' theories and their relevance in Canada and India, as well as issues of caste and racism were discussed.

एसएनडीटी विवि में मनी प्रेमचन्द जयंती....

हिन्दी विभाग, एसएनडीटी महिला विश्वविद्यालय, मुम्बई ने प्रति वर्ष की भाँति इस वर्ष भी 'प्रेमचन्द जयंती' पर उनकी कहानी के मंचन व परिचर्चा के रूप में अपने कथा-सम्राट को निराले ढंग से याद किया। मराठी, गुजराती व संस्कृत विभाग की सहभागिता के मध्य प्रति कुलपति प्रो. वन्दना चक्रवर्ती ने प्रेमचन्द की प्रतिमा पर माल्य-पुष्पार्पण व दीप-प्रज्वलन करके आयोजन का शुभारम्भ करते हुए कहा कि प्रेमचन्द ऐसे साहित्यकार थे, जो अपने विचारों को सिर्फ लिखते ही नहीं, जीवन में उतारते भी थे।

कार्यक्रम की शुरुआत एम.ए. की छात्राओं द्वारा प्रेमचन्द की अत्यंत महत्वपूर्ण व नामचीन कहानी 'सद्गति' की मंचीय प्रस्तुति से हुई, जो अपनी सादगी में साफ-सुथरी व संगीतमय तो रही ही, अपने असर में अश्रु-विह्वल कर देने वाली भी सिद्ध हुई। प्रसिद्ध रंगकर्मी व टीवी अभिनेत्री कनुप्रिया पण्डित के

नाट्य-रूपांतर व निर्देशन तथा युवा प्रतिभाशाली कलाकार इम्तियाज़ के गीत-संगीत से सजी प्रस्तुति को अपने विश्वस्त अभिनय से साकार किया – अंजलि सिंह, करिश्मा यादव, प्रीति मौर्य, रेमी उपाध्याय, प्रीति यादव, ऋतु पाण्डेय व शीतल चौहान ने।

कार्यक्रम के दूसरे सत्र में 'सद्गति' की विषय-वस्तु के अनुसार ही 'प्रेमचन्द के

कथा साहित्य में दलित चेतना' पर चर्चासत्र सम्पन्न हुआ। शुरुआत हुई रमेश राजहंस द्वारा प्रेमचंद की 'बालक' व 'घासवाली' कहानियों के पाठ से, जिसके बाद प्रो सुनीता साखरे के संचालन व प्रसिद्ध कथाकार मधु कांकरिया की सुबुद्ध अध्यक्षता में 'प्रेमचन्द की कहानियों में दलित चेतना' पर संजय भिसे व 'उपन्यासों में दलित चेतना' पर वरिष्ठ विचारक श्री अर्जुन डांगवाल ने अपने विचार रखे। ज़हीन रंगकर्मी नदकिशोर पंत ने 'सद्गति कहानी व मंचन का समानांतर मूल्यांकन किया। टीवी सिने अभिनेता विजयकुमार व शैलेश सिंह तथा मुख्तार खान ने अपने हस्तक्षेप से चर्चा को सार्थक बनाया।

शायर देवमणि व गीतकार रासबिहारी पाण्डेय जैसे शहर के रचनाकारों व अनेक साहित्य-प्रेमियों की उपस्थिति में विभागाध्यक्ष प्रो सत्यदेव त्रिपाठी ने सभी वक्ताओं के सन्दर्भ में प्रेमचन्द की दलित चेतना का समाहार करते हुए सबका आभार माना।
